-Skara Brae-
the Rangers
They need the warm sun and an endless wilderness.

Moll the Ranger
They seem a little frustrated with the Crown. They protect His Highness' wilderness. They have a duty to protect the forestlands of Britannia, and they are happy to do so. It can be said that the Rangers remain loyal, but hope the King will give them a little recognition.

-Minoc-
the Miner
They are all equally busy.
They don't even have time to talk to us. And they need to fill their carts by the end of the day.

Hamlyn the Miner
It's a lot of hard work, and it seems that there is pain in the back and body. That's about enough to throw abusive words out of their mouth. They seem to relax after a long day by drinking ale at the bar and trade tails. I give him a word of thanks and a ale, and I'll keep it secret that he was being sarcastic.

-Moonglow-
Farngil the Short-Tmpered There was one mage who looked busy. As we continue to ask him questions relentlessly... He got angry and teleported us to Jail in Nujelum.

Elyes the Mage
The Council of Mages doesn't seem to like interference from the mainland. The Council of Mages seems to manage its own affairs.

Apparently there is a difference of opinion between the mainland and the Council of Mages. He didn't seem to need anything. (He used the word "grace", but I didn't understand what that word meant.)

-Britain-

Stell the Farmer
Apparently, this year's harvest was not what they wanted. The price of onions is likely to soar this year. I funded her a little to make a shortfall.
They need a little help.
And when the crop fails, more help will be needed.

-Vesper-

Rolf the Sailor
He just said "just the sea and I fare well" and didn't answer our questions. Instead, he told us that the ship heading for Dragon Island may have been lost. He said if you want to know how they fare, find survivors on Dragon Island.

-Dragon Island-

Wilson the Shipwreck
Survivor
We found survivors on Dragon Island. Simply put, he needs a rescue.
Rescuing him requires a way out of the island and fewer pirates in the waters around Jhelom.
We need to report to Your Highness. "His

waters be teemin' with pirates these days!"

We have to hurry!
